THE UGLY CLUB'S Royal Court

'Ill-Favoured, the Lowlife Jester'
This is crazy. I don't know what this club is about. Is it for people who are ugly? Or people who are gorgeous and the name's just a joke. Of course it's for people who are ugly, look at the founder. He's an ugly, tractor driving, ear popping, power steering using, plain old crazy gym teacher. I'm honoured to be in his club, but it's still crazy.

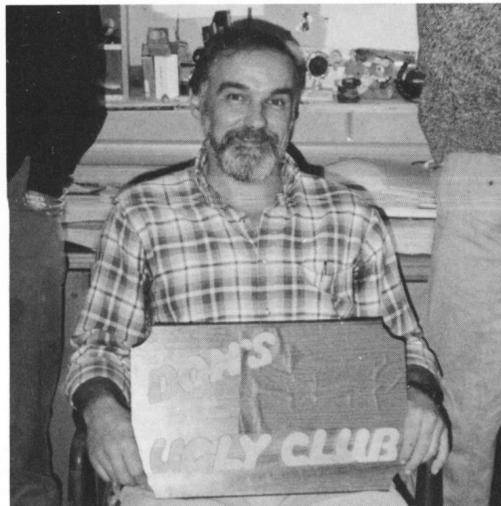

'The Degenerate Duchess of Dimwit'
I must say it has been a dream fulfilled. All the days spent fantasizing about someday being an accepted member of this prestigious club. To reign under his hideous highness is an honour for he along with being my mentor has also been a great friend. Thanks Ugly -- you will always be the most repulsive thing I've ever known. I mean it.

KING UGLY

The ugly club dates back to 1980 when P. "UGLY" Butler and D. "UGLY" McEwen were first united. It was formed because these two individuals didn't fit into the glamour of Wagar.

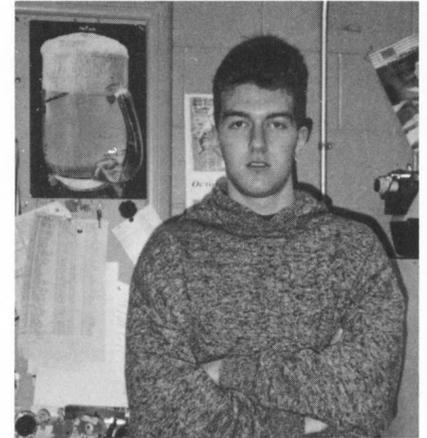

When the Ugly Butler left, Don Ugly was all alone. He roamed the halls, sent out invitations and posted notices -- hoping someone would meet the extremely low standards necessary to join him -- but as usual Wagar was simply a very good looking school. Suddenly, a small group of homely individuals became enlightened as to what the Ugly Club really represented. They began to understand that an Ugly personality was more important than their appearances. Applications were made, interviews conducted and the Royal Court was formed.

The reformation was amazing. Beneath the ugly exteriors and even poorer tastes in clothing, evolved a small group of scholars who, as frightening as it may be, began to think exactly the same was as the King. Even though some of the members thought that he was crazy at times, this group became very close. It became a club where humour was at its worst, where sarcasm was constant, "wit" was DIM, and one-liners were ever present.

On a more serious note, it also became a club where: a simple nod of the head was always understood -- and appreciated, a smile was genuine and a frown was a reason for concern and most importantly, it was a club where members were there to help each other through what could have been a very long and torturous year . . . And a special message from "His Highness" -- Thanks Guys!

Lord Loathesome One day about five years ago, while I was in my first year at Wagar, I found out that my school had an Ugly Club headed by the very ugly "King Ugly" Since that day it has been my main goal to make it into this prestigious club before it was too late and my high school days ended. Well I have realised my dream and am proud to be a member of the Ugly Club.

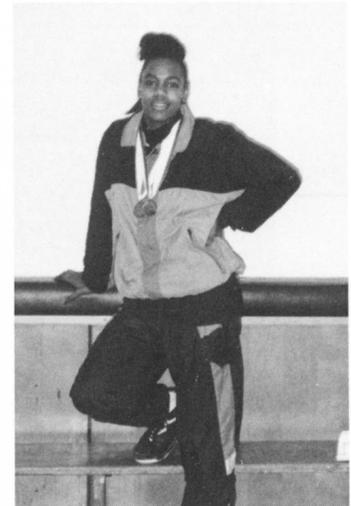

The Demented Duke I've always known there was a reason that I came to Wagar, that fate played a part in my decision, that there was a hidden motive driving me to this school. It was just recently however that I realized my mission was complete, the day I became a part of the Ugly Club.

This year's juvenile boy's volleyball team was a group of dedicated players. They were chosen as early season favorites to win it all as a result of their resounding victory in the James McGrath tournament. In the final game of that tournament, our boys decisively defeated the Loyola Warriors, the defending G.M.A.A. champions. The team was lead by a strong nucleus of veterans, including power hitters Mark Spence and Arpon Basu, and team captain Roger Saul. They completely dominated their division during the regular season, finishing with a record of 34 wins and 2 losses. Unfortunately, they couldn't pull off a victory in the G.M.A.A. semi-finals, taking their opponents to a grueling 3 games. Once again, Mr. McEwen volunteered his services as coach of the team, and did the job splendidly.
